Motorcycling Adventurer Danny Liska starts on another trip from Norway to Africa

The lure of motorcycling adventure once again has called Danny Liska to the Adventure Trail.

The Niobrara rancher flew to Hamburg, Germany the latter part of August where he equipped a BMW R-60 Motorcycle for this adventure - Liska's goal is to journey with his motorcycle from Northernmost cape of Norway, then travel southward through Europe; to Africa across the Sahara Desert into equatorial Africa and eventually to the southernmost Cape of Africa.

Here in Norway leaving the valleys of the picturesque countryside with its birch trees changing color climbing up, up to the end of timberline into the multicolored tundra and snow clad mountains, and here the Railroad that follows alongside has lots of snow shed- and snowfences and with the cold-wind-rain-sleet and desolation- a fitting scene for the marker -P O L A R C I R- C L E; pictured above. Traveling on for 700 miles farther north to the end of the continent north - only the sea beyond - the northernmost tip of North Cape. Arriving there the end of September and now Danny is headed south.

Danny and his wife Arlene returned last summer from Brazil with the battered remains of a 1958 BMW R 60 that carried the Liskas for 62,000 miles through every country on the North and South American Continent.
